General Description of the Purkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for 'packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hu dred best, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the luundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large codar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream failing from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half is dismeter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

To Persons out of Employment. NEW PICTORIAL WORKS,

Just published by R. SEARS, and for sale at No. 128
Nassau street, New York.

A MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1831.—Agents are wanted to circulate the following new and beautiful works, (retail price, $2 50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA;

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, customs, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabitants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for the work.

are accurate, and each one has been containing between the work.

The volume forms a large octave, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, handsomely bound in muslin, gilt, or leather, as the purchaser may prefer, at a very liberal discount, when quantities of not less than twenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES; comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Relationing the Search of the S

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of ar and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will fee free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Pl.in.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible men as agents, who are well known in their own-counties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise wfil risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholes ale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and newspaper agents, are respectability requested to act as our agents. A handsome remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars address, post paid,

WASHINGTON, May 16. QUEEN ANNE'S GREAT-GRANDMOTHER.

[Concluded.] Years had passed on, when some dispute arose-it is never too late or too early for lawdisputes-about the property of her first husband, the brewer. This made it requisite for her to have recourse to legal advice and assistance, and chance so determined it that she was recommended to a young barrister of Lincoln's Inn, who was thought by some to give a fair promise of rising one day to eminence in his profession. The young man, of whom a few more sagacious spirits ventured to predict such favorable things, but who was little known in general, was Edward Hyde, the future histo-rian of the great civil war, and the Lord High hancellor of England that was to be, after eries of events which still strike us as being mongst the most wonderful recorded in English chronicle. The business of the brewer's relict being of a complicated nature, and pro-tracted after the usual fashion of all law proceedings, it made many visits requisite to egal adviser, in the course of which she was often accompanied by her daughter Frances, with whom the young barrister incontinently fell in love. The young lady's affections were quickly won, and there were points in his favor with her parents, though he was deficient in the grand requisite, fortune. To make some amends for this, he was the nephew of the cele brated Sir Nicholas Hyde, was fast rising to eminence in his profession, and could plead the same political opinions as the very loyal and devoted Sir Thomas, although he did not as yet carry them to the same excess. At all events the knight's consent to their union must have been obtained, for we hereafter find him be-

But to give confidence to those who may not have tried it, we would say that Z. C. Ryon, foreman to A. M. Ryon this would be sufficient; but all tanners in the city and country, who have used it, have granted us this privilege. If it were necessary we could fill a newspaper with testimonials; but where all who use are pleased we deem it uncalled for.

The Tanners' Blacking is put up in kegs containing six gallons, ready for use, and will be sent to any point on the canal, railroad, or river, at fifty cents per gallen.

Troubled times now came on. The king raised the standard of civil war at Nottingham, where he was speedily joined by Sir Thomas, who rendered good service to the royal cause, and in consequence was set down by the Par-liamentarians in the roll of inveterate malignants. His hall in Buckinghamshire was burnt, and after many hair-breadth escapes, upon the execution of Charles, he fled, first to Antwerp, and afterwards to Beda, where he died at the advanced age of eighty-one, in the year 1657. Having thus followed the old gentleman to his grave, we return to his descendants, supposing always this Sir Thomas was really the fatherin-law of Hyde, and that there was no other knight or baronet of the same name. There is some mystery in the matter, which the young ounsellor himself was at no pains to clear up He simply states in the autobiography that he married the daughter of Sir Thomas Aylesbury, who succeeded to his father's estates.

For about two years after the death of Charles the First, Hyde remained in the island of Jersey, where he amused himself with composing the great history, which has done more towards making him known to us than all his services in the royal cause, or than even his subsequent alliance with the house of Stuart. How he afterwards exerted himself in bringing about the restoration, and rose to the highest dignities of the State, belongs to another chapter, and need not be recorded in this place. It is sufficient to observe, that he became Lord Chancellor, in which situation, notwithstanding his eminent abilities, he contrived to make himself unpopular with all parties, and even to lose the favor of the King, whom he had served with so much zeal and talent. The fact is, he was too austere and unbending to be a favorite, especially at a court like that of Charles the II., which not a little resembled that of Milton's enchanter.

Anne was now publicly received as Duchess of York. She gave birth to two children, Mary and Anne, and although she herself never had the good or ill fortune to share the crown of England, which in due time devolved to her husband, yet both her daughters in succession attained that honor. In this way was a brewer's wife, who had travelled barefooted to London, the great-grandmother of Queen Anne.

Such is the popular tradition that has been very generally received with little doubt or hesitation. Much of it, however, was in all probability mere slander, invented by the numerous BARRATT & DEBEET, Carvers and Gilders, manufac-turers of every variety of Plain and Ornamental Looking-Glass and Picture Frames, Window Cornices, Brackets, Bracket Tables, Ceiling Mouldings, &c., &c. CONGRESS OF NATIONS .- Two colored men, Robert Purvis, of Byberry, Pennsylvania, and Charles Lennox Remond, of Salem, Mass., have been sent as delegates to the assembly of nations now sitting in London. Their errand is slave population in this country, and ask an which is reported as their intended refuge, he expression of its opinion on the subject.

[Communicated.] THOUGHTS ON INSANITY.

From an unpublished manuscript by Hy. L. Harvey. Insanity, the result of an undue preponder ance of one portion over other of the mental faculties, is seldom recognised as such, unless the inequality which produced it has arisen during the advancement of life, and a change from what they had been has become observable in the habits and propensities of the subject. Some people are crazy from their birththat is, their minds were never properly ba-lanced. These are held accountable for their acts; while those whose misfortunes or habits have caused destruction or disease to faculties pirates. Quarters are not to be given to them. necessary to strengthen, guide, or restrain other faculties, are often excusable under the law for their wrong-doing. Moral responsibility is generally supposed to cease whenever mental action is disturbed, and the sequence of ideas becomes irregular to such a degree that the individual is incapable of discriminating or determining the true connection between cause and effect, or of forming consecutive opinions relative to external objects. The law, however, appropriately makes this distinction—that where this derangement of the faculties of the mind is voluntarily induced, or the means which produce it are voluntarily adopted with a knowledge of what will be the effect, the individual, though not accountable for acts committed while in that state, is held responsible for consequences resulting from them, as much as though committed in perfectly sane moments. Intoxication, whatever cause may produce it, is temporary insanity, varying in character according to the temperament and the state of health at the time of the persons influenced by Drunkenness is the most common form in which this species of insanity appears, and is usually induced, as the word imports, by the imbibing of drinks, stimulating the blood to an unnatural flow. This may be done innocently, and in ignorance of the effects they are calculated to produce, but far more often deliberately, and with a full knowledge, taught by personal experience of what will be the effect. The consequences of the insanity thus produced cannot be so readily predetermined. What has been its peculiar character on one occasion is no certain criterion to determine what it may be another, or under different circumstances. The person, therefore, who has had evidence of the intoxicating, or the insanity-producing power of such drinks, is without excuse for using them in a way to produce that effect; and can make no complaint against the law for holding him strictly accountable, nor justify himself for damage done by hin while in such a state of voluntary insanity.

A MILLIONAIRE'S FRAST .-- A Paris letter gives this account of a dinner given by Baron Rothschild to Navazez, at which were present only twenty-eight guests, the flower of the French aristocracy:

In the first place there was the splendid ser vice of Sevres porcelaine, which belonged to the unfortunate Marie Antoinette, and which was bought by Rothschild for 150,000 francs. Besides this enormous price, he still pays an annuity of 10,000 francs to the person who consented to give it up to him. During the repast, the whole service of the table was changed four times, the last being of silver and gold, worked by the most celebrated artists of Europe. It was almost impossible to tell by what end, by what side to take hold of the things, the use of which almost disappeared beneath the material and the workmanship, both so precious as to east and west an equal amount of representamake of most ordinary articles veritable works tion, was also rejected. It is still hoped that of art. The knives, for instance, were so ornamented, so carved, that it was quite difficult to handle them.

All these ri es were sent on to London th day after the revolution of February, and were | Madrid, of the 17th ultimo, the religious cerethe wonder of the nobility of England, when monies of the Holy Week were calebrated with displayed at a grand dinner given to the Duke the usual pomp in all the churches of Madrid; As to the eatables of the din-Wellington. ner I am describing, they consisted, says the that day, washed the feet of six poor men in reporter, of all the impossibilities of the seaon, sought out from the most celebrated hoting-grounds in France. Peaches, cherries. strawberries, appeared in the greatest abundance at the dessert, by the side of pine-apples, which, says the same reporter, blushed at having cost only one hundred francs a piece. Be sides these were various rare fruits from tropical climates; in short, the luxury was of the most unheard-of character, and the guests did not rise from table until after 10 o'clock.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENE .- Some of the good citizens of Gloucester, perambulating the docks on Good Friday morning, were alarmed by a Chattanaoga has now fine, large and commoterrible noise on board a Greek ship lying in dious hotels in full blast, and a large number appeared to have one of the crew amongst industrious population. The noise had hardly subsided when a similar scene appeared to be going forward on board another Greek vessel, lying alongside the first mentioned : the body, in this case, being lowered over the side into the water, and then, as if the murderous wretches had changed their intentions, it was hauled on deck, severely belabored, amidst shouts and execrations, and speedily hauled up to the vard-arm. The excitement on seeing two bodies dangling high in the air was most intense; some of the crowd assembled were calling out for the police; and two or three, more courageous than the rest, got on board one of the ships to demand an explanation, and with the determination to take the culprits into custody. explanation was duly given, and a hearty and general laugh was the result. The seamen were only performing a custom of the Greek Church, usually on Good Friday, by stuffing an effigy with straw, with a bag in its right hand, to represent Judas Iscariot, and hanging it, expresenemies whom Clarendon had provoked by his sive of their abhorrence of the conduct of that worthy in betraying our Saviour. The next morning the effigies were hauled down and There are no proofs, so far as treated with great indignity, amid renewed shouts and the discharge of muskets. [London Times.

CUBA AND THE EXPEDITION .- A HAVADA COP. respondent of the New York Journal of Commerce states that some few more sudden arrests have been made, but whether connected with the affair, one cannot say, although it is presumed they are.

A correspondent of the New York Express states that the Captain General had declared that, in case the expedition should attack the to lay before that body the condition of the island, be defeated, and retreat to Key West, will follow them there and destroy the town.

THE ISLAND OF CUBA .- Proclamations and General Orders of the Captain General.—The Spanish paper, La Union, extra, published at New Orleans on the 6th, contains the general orders and circular of the Captain General of Cuba, in relation to the anticipated second advent of the Fillibusters on the island.

General Order to the Army.

Soldiers! Those who fled so cowardly from Cardenas, before a handful of you, intend again to tread on the soil which your valor defended so effectually. He who heads the band is a traitor; those who follow, without country or any reasonized flag are pathing also then any recognised flag, are nothing else than Soldiers, your valor and your discipline assure me that their extermination will only be delayed until you meet them. HAVANA, April 30, 1851.

Here follows the proclamation, or circular, of La Concha, addressed to the authorities of the island. He enjoins quiet and calm upon all, and it is evident that he was a little fidgetty when he wrote it. He says:

It has come to the knowledge of the Government that preparations are being made for a new incursion of the pirates, similar to that which took place at Cardenas last year. They propose, without doubt, now, as at that time, to seek the defenceless towns and disturb the order that reigns in this beautiful part of the Spanish dominions. But the loyalty of its in-habitants, and the valor and discipline of the troops, and the measures taken by government, are a sure guarantee that their destruction will immediately follow the news of their landing. You must endeavor, then, that the news of this invasion shall not produce any alarm in the district under your command.

To exterminate the pirates, whatever may be their number, it will not be necessary to have recourse to extraordinary measures; the ordinary means of the government are more than sufficient. Every disposition that shall cause a deviation from the usual order of things will produce uneasiness and disquietude amongst the peaceable inhabitants, and might cause business to be interrupted, which would be a real loss to public and private interests.

DEATH OF AN EDITOR .- We regret to state that Richard B. Gooch, esq., so long and favorably known to the public as the editor of the Southern Planter, died, after a severe illness of a few days, at the residence of his mother, near this city, on Tuesday last. Mr. G. was a man of fine education, of handsome talents, and of a very amiable disposition. He obtained a considerable reputation by a series of letters written during a sojourn of several years in Europe, and originally published in the Richmond Enquirer. He was one of the best reporters, on the old plan of giving the spirit and substance of a speaker's remarks, (an accomplishment requiring much higher mental attributes than the present system,) we have ever known. His death is much regretted by the fraternity, and the community in which he was born and had resided from his birth. He was buried on Wednesday, with military honors, by the Artillery company, of which he had been an officer, and was an honorary member.-Richmond Daily Dispatch.

RICHMOND, May 15-6 p. m .- Virginia State Convention.—The convention to-day, in committee of the whole, voted down the mixed basis principle of representation. They also rejected the compromise report, which gave the west a majority of 14 in the house of delegates and the east 11 in the senate, by the same majority. Mr. Botts's compromise, proposing to give the an adjustment will be made.

THE GOOD OF RAILBOADS .- The Memphis Tenn.) Eagle of the 1st instant has the following paragraph: "We recollect the time when Chattanooga, on the line between Georgia and Tennessee, was a poor, miserable apology for a town, with a blacksmith shop, a grocery, and what was facetiously called a tower. Its census could have been taken in a quarter of an hour. the middle of the basin. The captain and others of beautiful private residences, and a thriving, ence of railroads."

Gen. Scott.-It cannot have escaped the notice of those who pay the slightest attention to politics, that General Winfield Scott is fast becoming a most prominent Whig candidate for the next Presidency. It may happen that indiscreet friends may injure his chances for the nomination by thrusting him forward immaturely, but unless something of that sort is done, the hero of many wars stands an excellent chance of being the candidate of the Whig party in 1852 for the highest office in the gift of the people. - Cumberland Civilian,

A VERY AGED MAN .- Captain Stephen Smith, Northford, (Ct.,) became one hundred years of age about three weeks since, on which occasion he invited in about fifty friends, and had a sermon preached at his house. Formerly, for years, he was captain of a vessel out of this port .- New Haven Journal.

EDUCATION IN LIBERIA. - Stephen Fairbanks, treasurer of the board of trustees of donations for education in Liberia, acknowledges the receipt of one thousand dollars from a merchant of Boston. This is truly a liberal donation to a most worthy object.

ACCIDENT TO MR. GIDDINGS .- We learn from the Cleveland True Democrat, that Hon. J. R. Giddings met with a severe accident on Friday last. He fell from a wagon and broke two of his ribs. Though severely injured, his situation is not regarded as dangerous. This will, of course, prevent his attendance at the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which commences at Utica to-day.
